Consent for Electronic Communication

Please be informed that electronic communication may not be a secure form of communication. As stated in the Informed Consent form, I use an encrypted email service which helps ensure that your Protected Health Information (PHI) stays confidential, this form also states that it is your responsibility to maintain your email in a way that protects your privacy.

Many clients find texting a convenient way to communicate when an appointment needs to be changed or when they know they will arrive late for an appointment. Texting is not a secure form of communication. If you would like me to be able to reply when you communicate by text, this form states that you know it is not a secure form of communication, and that anything you text cannot be assured to be protected according to the laws governing PHI. This form allows communication using the convenience of text, while acknowledging its limitations. Please note that it is rare that I will be able to address emotional processes by text.

I, (name of client) _____ give my permission for Kaseja Wilder, LLC to respond to text messages sent by me. I acknowledge that text is not a secure form of communication and that anything texted may not protect my privacy.
